

PROPERTY
Fall 2011
Professor Ann Tweedy

I. Course Description:

We will examine the concept of real and personal property in the American legal system, at times looking at the largely English roots of current property concepts. Much of our time will be spent on real property concepts, including estates in land, future interests, types of ownership, servitudes, and landlord-tenant law.

II. Learning Objectives:

A. Case analysis, legal reasoning, and problem solving.

1. Property is a common law subject, meaning that it is largely based on cases rather than statutes. Because of this, (a) understanding the subtleties of cases and (b) being able to argue for or against their application to new situations are particularly important. Therefore, knowledge of the holdings and reasoning of the cases we study will be emphasized. Honing these skills will help develop your prowess as a litigator.
2. Lawyers also need to be able to develop creative ways to solve problems out of court. Solving problems out of court can save your client the often prohibitive costs and substantial time commitment associated with litigation and may enable clients to preserve valuable relationships that would be destroyed by acrimonious litigation. Accordingly, some attention will be paid in the course to development of such creative solutions.

B. Evaluation of policy issues.

1. In a variety of situations, such as serving as legislative counsel, serving as a judge, and advocating for legislative change at the state, local, or federal levels, lawyers also need to evaluate the policy implications of laws. Accordingly, some attention will be devoted to the policy implications of cases and statutes. Students will be expected to make arguments based on considerations of justice, cost, potential deterrent effects, and other policy bases.

C. Collaborative learning and public communication skills.

III. Text:

- A. Required Text: JOSEPH WILLIAM SINGER, PROPERTY LAW: RULES, POLICIES & PRACTICES (5th Ed. 2010).

- B. Recommended Text: JOHN SPRANKLING, UNDERSTANDING PROPERTY LAW (2d Ed. 2007).

IV. Office Hours TBA and by Appointment.

My regular weekly office hours will be announced on the first day of class. No appointment is needed to stop in during regular office hours. If you cannot make the regularly scheduled office hours, please make an appointment to see me by emailing, calling, or scheduling one in person. I strongly encourage any student who needs help with a particular topic, who would like to discuss an issue further, or who has any feedback to meet with me outside of class.

V. Class Rules and Information.

A. Attendance and Punctuality.

Regular and punctual attendance is required. Missing more than 4 classes is grounds for being withdrawn from the class. Missing 3 or 4 classes will be factored negatively into your class participation assessment, while attending all classes will be positively factored in. Punctuality is also important, as late arrivals are disruptive to class.

B. Grades and Class Participation.

Your grades will be primarily determined by an exam at the end of the semester. However, class participation is also important, and I reserve the right to increase grades based on consistent and high quality class participation and to lower grades based on excessive absences, consistent late arrivals, lack of preparation or effort in class, violation of the laptop policy, or any other disruption to class, such as talking, whispering, or laughing in class. Class participation includes attendance, punctuality, volunteering to answer questions, answering questions when called on, and participation in any in-class exercises.

To facilitate full participation, each of you will have a name card. Display your name card in each class. If you misplace your name card, please provide a substitute. Non-use of your name card will be included in evaluation of your participation.

If you have special circumstances that affect your participation, please let me know so that we can arrange for special accommodations.

C. Laptop Use.

Laptops are only permitted for notetaking. If you are discovered utilizing the computer for purposes unrelated to class (such as emailing, participating in chat rooms, surfing the web etc.), your grade for the course may be lowered by one half grade. If you believe you will have difficulty following the laptop policy, bring a pad of paper and your pen to class instead of your computer.

D. TWEN.

You are required to register for the TWEN course page. The password will be provided on the first day of class.

E. Assignments.

The first few assignments are listed below. Generally, we will cover all the material assigned for each class during that class, but some adjustments will be made dependent on the pace of the class. All assignments are from the Singer textbook unless “Handout” is indicated. This syllabus is subject to change.
