

ABOUT THE EDITORS

Christopher Honeyman is managing partner of Convenor Conflict Management (www.convenor.com), a consulting firm based in Washington, DC and Madison, Wisconsin. He is co-editor of The Negotiator's Fieldbook (with Andrea Schneider; ABA 2006) and Rethinking Negotiation Teaching (with James Coben and Giuseppe De Palo; DRI Press 2009), and author or co-author of more than 70 published articles, book chapters and monographs on dispute resolution. Honeyman has directed a twenty-year series of major R&D projects in dispute resolution, and has served as a consultant to numerous academic and practical conflict resolution programs in the U.S. and elsewhere. He has also served as a mediator, arbitrator or in other neutral capacities in more than 2,000 disputes since the 1970s. He is currently vice-chair of the Independent Standards Commission, International Mediation Institute, The Hague.

James Coben is a professor of law at Hamline University School of Law in St. Paul, Minnesota and former director of Hamline's Dispute Resolution Institute, consistently ranked by U.S. News & World Report in the top five among U.S. law school dispute resolution programs. He teaches civil procedure and a variety of alternative dispute resolution (ADR) courses, and created three Hamline foreign programs – an international commercial arbitration program in London, an international business transactions negotiation program in Rome, and a program in democratic dialogue and mediation in Budapest. He has published numerous ADR-related articles, and is co-editor of Rethinking Negotiation Teaching (with Christopher Honeyman and Giuseppe De Palo; DRI Press 2009) and co-author of the third edition of Mediation: Law, Policy & Practice (West Group, forthcoming 2010).

Giuseppe De Palo is the international professor of ADR Law and Practice at Hamline University School of Law. De Palo is chairman of the Rome-based ADR Center, the largest neutral ADR firm in continental Europe (www.adrcenter.com) and now a member of JAMS International. He regularly mediates international business disputes, and is the director of numerous major projects – financed by the EU, the World Bank and other global organizations – to promote effective dispute resolution mechanisms. He is co-editor (with Mary Trevor) of Arbitration and Mediation in the Southern Mediterranean Countries (Kluwer 2007) and of the column Worldly Perspectives in CPR's Alternatives. He is also the author of several other books and articles published in Australia, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Turkey, and the United States.