

SMALL BUSINESS/NON-PROFIT CLINIC
COURSE SYLLABUS

Fall 2013

Wednesday: 6:00 – 7:50 p.m.

1) Required, Recommended and Supplemental Readings.

Reading assignments will be distributed during class. Apart from the materials distributed during class, there will be no other reading assignments.

2) Statement of Goals and Objectives.

The primary goal of this class is to provide the student with the background and experience of practicing law in a law firm focusing on a corporate (including nonprofit corporations) and transactional practice. As part of this experience the students will meet with clients, draft documents and deal with issues as they arise in the context of corporate and transactional practice. Additionally, students will keep track of their time spent on each project, as if they were actually billing the client and turn in the timesheets to the instructors. Finally, the students will participate in classroom exercises designed to provide an overview of corporate and transactional issues which commonly arise with their clients for the clinic and in private practice.

3) Attendance Policy.

Given the nature of the class and the small number of students, attendance is critical. In addition to classroom attendance, students are expected to attend meetings with mock clients. As will be described in the Grading portion of the Syllabus, failure to attend mock client meetings or meaningfully participate in classroom exercises will result in zero points for that exercise and cannot be made up. This will dictate attendance. Any more than two unexcused absences from class will be defined as “grossly excessive absence,” mandating that the instructors take action under Academic Rule 1110.

4) Testing, Grading and Laptop Policy.

There will be no tests. Students will be graded based on their participation in classroom exercises, written exercises, mock client interviews, work-product and timesheets. Attached to this Syllabus is the form Grading Sheet and Course Schedule. As mentioned in the Attendance Policy above, failure to attend mock client meetings or meaningfully participate in classroom exercises will result in zero points for that portion of the grade. These points cannot be made up. Written exercises, if not timely turned in, can be made up at the instructors’ discretion. Failure to complete client work will result in an automatic failing grade for the class. Laptops are not allowed in class.
