

ABOUT THE EDITORS

Christopher Honeyman is managing partner of Convenor Conflict Management (www.convenor.com), a consulting firm based in Washington, DC and Madison, Wisconsin. He is co-editor of The Negotiator's Fieldbook (with Andrea Schneider; ABA 2006), and author or co-author of more than 50 published articles, book chapters and monographs on dispute resolution ethics, quality control and infrastructure development. Honeyman is the lead external consultant to ADR Center (Rome), the largest neutral ADR firm in continental Europe. He has served as mediator, arbitrator and in other neutral capacities in more than 2,000 disputes since the 1970s, and as a consultant to the Hewlett Foundation as well as numerous academic and practical conflict resolution programs in the U.S. and abroad. He is currently co-chair of the ABA Dispute Resolution Section's Committee on Negotiation.

James Coben is a professor of law at Hamline University School of Law in St. Paul, Minnesota, where he directs the Dispute Resolution Institute, consistently ranked by U.S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT in the top five among U.S. law school dispute resolution programs. He teaches civil procedure and a variety of alternative dispute resolution (ADR) courses, and created and directs three Hamline foreign programs – an international commercial arbitration program in London, an international business transactions negotiation program in Rome, and a program in democratic dialogue and mediation in Budapest. He has published numerous ADR-related articles, and is co-author of the third edition of MEDIATION: LAW, POLICY & PRACTICE (West Group, forthcoming late 2009). He is a former Chair of the ADR Section of the Association of American Law Schools (AALS).

Giuseppe De Palo is international professor of ADR Law and Practice at Hamline University School of Law. De Palo is chairman of Rome-based ADR Center, the largest neutral ADR firm in continental Europe (www.adrcenter.it). He mediates regularly in major international business disputes. De Palo led ADR Center to win the largest contract yet awarded by the European Union in ADR, to develop international commercial arbitration and mediation in ten Mediterranean countries, followed by EU- and World Bank-supported contracts for ADR in Turkey, Nigeria, Morocco, Barbados and throughout Europe. With Leonardo D'Urso and Manon Schonewille, he co-founded M&SD International – The Trainers Academy (www.msdtainers.com). He is co-editor (with Mary Trevor) of Arbitration and Mediation in the Southern Mediterranean Countries (Kluwer, 2007) and an author of other books and articles published in Italy, France, the Netherlands, Germany and Turkey. De Palo is a member of the CPR International Panel of Distinguished Neutrals and of the Board of Editorial Advisors of Negotiation Journal.